) DEFENDANT'S MOTIONS

15 I.

16 STATEMENT OF FACTS

17 Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez was arrested on March 16, 2008 near the Otay Lakes 18 Reservoir, approximately two miles east of the otay Mesa port of entry. Mr. Gonzalez was 19 indicted on April 9, 2008 with being found in the United States in violation of 8 U.S.C.
20 §1326(a) and (b).

21 II.

22 MOTION TO COMPEL DISCOVERY

23 Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez requests the following discovery pursuant to Fed. R. Crim. P.
24 12(b)(4) and 16:

25 (1) all written and oral statements made by Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez. This request 26 includes, but is not limited to, any rough notes, records, reports, transcripts or other 27 documents in which statements of Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez are contained. It also includes the 28 substance of any oral statements which the government intends to introduce at trial. Mr.

1 Gonzalez-Ramirez specifically requests that his recorded statements to both CHP and 2 Immigration officers be disclosed. These are all discoverable under Fed. R. Crim. P.
3 16(a)(1)(A) and Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963). Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez also 4 requests any response to any Miranda warnings which may have been given to him. See 5 United States v. McElroy, 697 F.2d 459 (2d Cir. 1982);

6 (2) all documents, statements, agents' reports, and tangible evidence favorable to Mr.
7 Gonzalez-Ramirez on the issue of guilt or punishment and/or which affects the credibility 8 of the government's case. This evidence must be produced pursuant to Brady v. Maryland, 9 373 U.S. 83, 87 (1963), and United States v. Agurs, 427 U.S. 97 (1976);

10 (3) all evidence, documents, records of judgments and convictions, photographs and 11 tangible evidence, and information pertaining to any prior arrests and convictions or prior 12 bad acts. Evidence of prior record is available under Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(a)(1)(B). Evidence 13 of prior similar acts is discoverable under Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(a)(1)(C) and Fed. R. Evid.
14 404(b) and 609;

15 (4) all evidence seized as a result of any search, either warrantless or with a warrant, 16 in this case. He also specifically requests copies of all photographs, videotapes or recordings 17 made in this case. This is available under Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(a)(1)(C); 18 (5) all arrest reports, investigator's notes, memos from arresting officers, sworn 19 statements and prosecution reports pertaining to Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez, including his "A" 20 file and the recordings of his prior deportation(s). These are available under Fed. R. Crim. P.

21 16(a)(1)(B) and (C), Fed. R. Crim. P. 26.2 and 12(i);

22 (6) the personnel file of the interviewing agent(s) containing any complaints of 23 assaults, abuse of discretion and authority and/or false arrest. Pitchess v. Superior Court, 11 24 Cal. 3d. 531, 539 (1974). In addition, the defense requests that the prosecutor examine the 25 personnel files of all testifying agents, and turn over Brady and Giglio material reasonably in 26 advance of trial. United States v. Henthorn, 931 F.2d 29, 30-31(9th Cir. 1991). If the 27 prosecutor is unsure as to whether the files contain Brady or Giglio material, the files should 28 be submitted to the Court, in camera. Id. The prosecution should bear in mind that there

1 exists an affirmative duty on the part of the government to examine the files. Id.;

2 (7) any and all statements made by any other uncharged co-conspirators. The defense 3 is entitled to this evidence because it is material to preparation for the defendant's case and 4 potentially Brady material. Also, insofar as such statements may be introduced as 5 co-conspirator statements, they are discoverable. Fed. R. Crim. 16(a)(1)© and Brady. This 6 evidence must be produced pursuant to Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963), and United 7 States v. Agurs, 427 U.S. 97 (1976);

8 (8) Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez requests copies of any and all audio/video tape recordings 9 made by the agents in this case and any and all transcripts, including taped recordings of any 10 conversations of any of the agents involved in this case. Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez specifically 11 requests copies of the audio tape of all the deportation hearings in this case that the 12 government intends to use in its case-in-chief.. This evidence is available under Fed. R.
13 Crim. P. 16(a)(1)©;

14 (9) Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez specifically requests the name and last known address of 15 each prospective government witness. See United States v. Napue, 834 F.2d 1311 (7th Cir.
16 1987); United States v. Tucker, 716 F.2d 583 (9th Cir. 1983) (failure to interview 17 government witnesses by counsel is ineffective); United States v. Cook, 608 F.2d 1175, 1181 18 (9th Cir. 1979) (defense has equal right to talk to witnesses).

19 (10) all other documents and tangible objects, including photographs, books, papers, 20 documents, photographs, or building or places or copies of portions thereof which are 21 material to Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez' defense or intended for use in the government's 22 case-in-chief or were obtained from or belong to Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez. Mr. Gonzalez-23 Ramirez also requests access to all his personal belongings seized, including his wallet, any 24 clothes he was wearing at the time of his arrest and any baggage he had with him. Rule 25 16(a)(1)©;

26 (11) all results or reports of scientific tests or experiments, or copies of which are 27 within the possession, control, or custody of the government or which are known or become 28 known to the attorney for the government, that are material to the preparation of the defense,

1 including the opinions, analysis and conclusions of experts consulted by law enforcement
2 including finger print specialists in the instant case. These must be disclosed, once a request
3 is made, even though obtained by the government later, pursuant to Fed.R.Crim.Pro.
4 16(a)(1)(D).

5 (12) any express or implicit promise, understanding, offer of immunity, of past, 6 present, or future compensation, agreement to execute a voluntary return rather than 7 deportation or any other kind of agreement or understanding between any prospective 8 government witness and the government (federal, state and local), including any implicit 9 understanding relating to criminal or civil income tax liability. United States v. Shaffer, 789 10 F.2d 682 (9th Cir. 1986); United States v. Risken, 788 F. 2d 1361 (8th Cir. 1986); United 11 States v. Luc Levasseur, 826 F.2d 158 (1st Cir. 1987);

12 (13) any discussion with a potential witness about or advice concerning any 13 contemplated prosecution, or any possible plea bargain, even if no bargain was made, or the 14 advice not followed. Brown v. Duggen, 831 F.2d 1546, 1558 (11th Cir. 1986) (evidence that 15 witness sought plea bargain is to be disclosed, even if no deal struck); Haber v. Wainwright, 16 756 F.2d 1520, 1524 (11th Cir. 1985);

17 (14) any evidence that of any witnesses which were with Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez at the 18 time of his arrest or information that any prospective government witness is biased or 19 prejudiced against the defendant, has a motive to falsify or distort his or her testimony or is 20 prejudiced against Mexican people. Pennsylvania v. Ritchie, 480 S.Ct. 39 (1989); United 21 States v. Strifler, 851 F.2d 1192 (9th Cir. 1988);

22 (15) any evidence that any prospective government witness has engaged in any 23 criminal act whether or not resulting in a conviction. See Rule 608(b), Federal Rules of 24 Evidence and Brady;

25 (16) any evidence that any prospective witness is under investigation by federal, state 26 or local authorities for any criminal conduct. United States v. Chitty, 760 F.2d 425 (2d Cir.), 27 cert. denied, 474 U.S. 945 (1985); and,

28 (17) any evidence, including any medical or psychiatric report or evaluation, tending

1 to show that any prospective witness's ability to perceive, remember, communicate, or tell the 2 truth is impaired; and any evidence that a witness has ever used narcotics or other controlled 3 substance, or has ever been an alcoholic. United States v. Strifler, 851 F.2d 1197 (9th Cir.
4 July 11, 1988); Chavis v. North Carolina, 637 F.2d 213, 224 (4th Cir. 1980);

5 (18) the name and last known address of every witness to the crime or crimes charged 6 (or any of the overt acts committed in furtherance thereof) who will not be called as a 7 government witness. Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez specifically requests the names of the other three 8 persons arrested with him as they are percipient witness to the manner in which they were 9 arrested. Specifically, Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez requests that the I-213s or any other records of 10 their arrests be provided in discovery. United States v. Cadet, 727 F.2d 1469 (9th Cir.
11 1984);

12 (19) the name and last known address of each prospective government witness. See 13 United States v. Napue, 834 F.2d 1311 (7th Cir. 1987); United States v. Tucker, 716 F.2d 14 583 (9th Cir. 1983) (failure to interview government witnesses by counsel is ineffective); 15 United States v. Cook, 608 F.2d 1175, 1181 (9th Cir. 1979) (defense has equal right to talk to 16 witnesses);

17 (20) the name of any witness who made an arguably favorable statement concerning 18 the defendant or who could not identify him or who was unsure of his identity, or 19 participation in the crime charged. Jackson v. Wainwright, 390 F.2d 288 (5th Cir. 1968); 20 Chavis v. North Carolina, 637 F.2d 213, 223 (4th Cir. 1980); James v. Jago, 575 F.2d 1164, 21 1168 (6th Cir. 1978); Hudson v. Blackburn, 601 F.2d 785 (5th Cir. 1975);

22 (21) Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez requests a transcript of the grand jury testimony and 23 rough notes of all witnesses expected to testify at the motion hearing or at trial. This 24 evidence is discoverable under Fed. R. Crim. P. 12(I) and 26;

25 (22) Jencks Act Material. The defense requests all material to which defendant is 26 entitled pursuant to the Jencks Act, 18 U.S.C. § 3500, reasonably in advance of trial, 27 including dispatch tapes. A verbal acknowledgment that "rough" notes constitute an accurate 28 account of the witness' interview is sufficient for the report or notes to qualify as a statement

1 under §3500(e)(1). Campbell v. United States, 373 U.S. 487, 490-92 (1963). In United 2 States v. Boshell, 952 F.2d 1101 (9th Cir. 1991), the Ninth Circuit held that when an agent 3 goes over interview notes with the subject of the interview the notes are then subject to the 4 Jencks Act. The defense requests pre-trial production of Jencks material to expedite cross-5 examination and to avoid lengthy recesses during the pre-trial motions hearings or trial. Mr.
6 Gonzalez-Ramirez specifically requests rough notes regarding the interview of Mr.
7 Gonzalez-Ramirez, especially if the notes reflect the time and place of those statements. Mr.
8 Gonzalez-Ramirez puts the government on notice that he will seek rough notes of any and all 9 testifying agents on the date set for the motion hearing, and requests that the agent/witnesses 10 be instructed to bring the notes to court.

12 THE INDICTMENT MUST BE DISMISSED OR LIMITED TO A TWO 13 YEAR STATUTORY MAXIMUM BECAUSE THE INDICTMENT 14 FAILS TO CHARGE THAT DEFENDANT WAS CONVICTED OF A 15 PRIOR FELONY.

16 In Almendarez-Torres v. United States, 523 U.S. 224, 118 S.Ct. 1219 (1998), a five 17 Justice majority held that the government can prove the crime of being found in the United 18 States after deportation without proving the fact of prior conviction. The fact of the prior 19 conviction could be proved to the judge during a sentencing hearing without offending the 20 Fifth or Sixth Amendment of the Constitution. Soon after Almendarez-Torres, a five-four 21 decision written by Justice Thomas, the Supreme Court embarked on a series of cases 22 holding that any fact which increases the maximum punishment must be charged and proven 23 to the jury beyond a reasonable doubt. This line of cases began with Jones v. United States 24 526 U.S. 227, 119 S.Ct. 1215 (1999), where the Supreme Court addressed the issue of when 25 disputed factors in a criminal case are considered elements of the offense rather than 26 sentencing factors. The Jones Court distinguished its opinion in Almendarez-Torres v.
27 United States, 523 U.S. 224, 118 S.Ct. 1219 (1998) stating “the holding last Term [in 28 Almendarez-Torres] rested in substantial part on the tradition of regarding recidivism as a sentencing fact, not as an element to be set out in the indictment.” Jones, 526 U.S. at pp.248-

1 249, 119 S.Ct. at p. 1227. In so holding, the Supreme Court opined that “any fact (other than 2 prior conviction) that increases the maximum penalty for a crime must be charged in an 3 indictment, submitted to jury, and proven beyond a reasonable doubt.” Id., 526 U.S. at p.243 4 n.6, 119 S.Ct. at p. 1224 n.6. Most important for this Court, however, is that fact that in 5 Jones, Justice Thomas switched sides indicating that the Almendarez-Torres decision was in 6 question since the five Justice majority had been broken and five justices now agreed with 7 the dissent in Almendarez-Torres which opined that prior convictions which raised the 8 maximum possible sentence had to be pled and proved to the jury beyond a reasonable doubt.
9 Then in Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466, 120 S.Ct. 2348 (2000) the Supreme Court 10 announced the constitutional rule that under the Sixth Amendment, any fact that increases the 11 maximum punishment must be proved to the jury beyond a reasonable doubt. More 12 important for the instant case, Justice Thomas wrote an extensive dissent in which he 13 repudiated his opinion in Almendarez-Torres indicating that if presented with the issues in 14 Almendarez-Torres he would side with the minority thereby tilting the vote and making the 15 Almendarez-Torres minority opinion the majority holding. Almendarez-Torres, 530 U.S. at 16 520-521; 120 S.Ct. at 2379. The minority in Almendarez-Torres stated that any fact – 17 whether a fact related to the commission of the charged offense or the fact of a prior 18 conviction – which increases the maximum possible sentence must be proved to the jury 19 beyond a reasonable doubt. Almendarez-Torres, 523 U.S. at 248-271; 118 S.Ct. at 1233-20 1244. The import of this statement is that after Jones and Apprendi a majority of the 21 Supreme Court now is of the opinion that even prior convictions must be pled and proved to 22 a jury beyond a reasonable doubt.

23 The readiness of the Supreme Court to readdress and overrule Almendarez-Torres was 24 made clear this past week in Shepard v. United States, 544 U.S. 13 (2005). Indeed, it seems 25 that Almendarez-Torres should already be considered bad law according to Justice Thomas’s 26 concurrence:

27 Almendarez-Torres, like Taylor, has been eroded by this Court's subsequent 28 Sixth Amendment jurisprudence, and a majority of the Court now recognizes that Almendarez-Torres was wrongly decided. See 523 U.S., at 248-249, 118

S.Ct. 1219 (SCALIA, J., joined by STEVENS, SOUTER, and GINSBURG, JJ., dissenting); Apprendi, supra, at 520-521, 120 S.Ct. 2348 (THOMAS, J., concurring). The parties do not request it here, but in an appropriate case, this Court should consider Almendarez-Torres' continuing viability. Innumerable criminal defendants have been unconstitutionally sentenced under the flawed rule of Almendarez-Torres, despite the fundamental "imperative that the Court maintain absolute fidelity to the protections of the individual afforded by the notice, trial by jury, and beyond-a-reasonable-doubt requirements." Harris v. United States, 536 U.S. 545, 581-582, 122 S.Ct. 2406 (2002) (THOMAS, J., dissenting).

Thus, it seems clear that the rules of Apprendi through Booker the government must plead and prove the prior conviction which it seeks to use to enhance Mr. Delgado's enhancement. Mr. Delgado believes there are only two possible remedies to the government's failure to plead the prior conviction: (1) proceed to trial on the current indictment but limit the conviction to a section 1326(a) conviction with a two year maximum sentence; (2) dismiss the indictment for failure to charge all the elements.

In Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466 (2000), the Supreme Court held that "'it is unconstitutional for a legislature to remove from the jury the assessment of facts that increase the prescribed range of penalties to which a criminal defendant is exposed. It is equally clear that such facts must be established by proof beyond a reasonable doubt.'" Apprendi, 530 U.S. at 490 (quoting Jones v. United States, 526 U.S. 227, 252-53 (1999) (Stevens, J., concurring)); accord Jones, 526 U.S. at 253 (Scalia, J., concurring) ("it is unconstitutional to remove from the jury the assessment of facts that alter the congressionally prescribed range of penalties to which a criminal defendant is exposed"); see also Mullaney v. Wilbur, 421 U.S. 684 (1975); In re Winship, 397 U.S. 358 (1970). In reaching that conclusion, the Supreme Court acknowledged that its previous decision in Almendarez-Torres v. United States, 523 U.S. 224 (1998), was at least problematic in that its holding does not seem to comport with the plain constitutional rule announced in Apprendi. See Apprendi, 530 U.S. at 487 (describing Almendarez-Torres as "represent[ing] at best an exceptional departure from the historic practice we have described"); see also id. at 489 ("it is arguable that Almendarez-Torres was incorrectly decided").

Apprendi's solution to the conflict between its rule and the result in Almendarez-

1 Torres was to treat the latter as an aberrational – and strictly limited – decision addressing 2 only the sufficiency of the indictment in that case. See Apprendi, 530 U.S. at 487-88. In 3 short, it represented an odd result owing to its peculiar facts. In Almendarez-Torres, the 4 defendant was charged with a “found in” section 1326 offense, but his indictment did not 5 allege that he had previously been deported after having suffered aggravated felony 6 convictions. Almendarez-Torres, 523 U.S. at 227. Even so, during his guilty plea 7 Almendarez Torres “admitted that he had been deported, and that he had later unlawfully 8 returned to the United States, and that the earlier deportation had taken place ‘pursuant to’ 9 three earlier ‘convictions’ for aggravated felonies.” Id. (quoting from the record). It was 10 against this highly unusual factual backdrop that Almendarez-Torres analyzed an objection at 11 sentencing that the indictment contained no allegations of the prior convictions -- convictions 12 which the petitioner admitted as part of his guilty plea.

13 Apprendi noted these odd facts, see 530 U.S. at 487, concluding that, in light of the 14 admissions under oath, “[b]oth the certainty that procedural safeguards attached to any ‘fact’ 15 of prior conviction, and the reality that Almendarez-Torres did not challenge the accuracy of 16 that ‘fact’ in his case, mitigated the due process and Sixth Amendment concerns otherwise 17 implicated in allowing a judge to determine a ‘fact’ increasing punishment beyond the 18 maximum of the statutory range.” Id. at 488. Thus, “no question concerning the right to a 19 jury trial or the standard of proof that would apply to a contested issue of fact was before the 20 Court” when it rendered its decision in Almendarez-Torres. Id. Nor was there any real issue 21 as to the sufficiency of the indictment. See United States v. Cotton, 535 U.S. 625 (2002).
22 Because Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez exercised his Fifth Amendment grand jury right, and his 23 Sixth Amendment right to jury trial, his case squarely presents the issues that Apprendi 24 observed were left open in Almendarez-Torres. See id.

25 The recent decisions of United States v. Booker, 543 U. S. 220 (2005) and Blakely v.
26 Washington, 542 U.S. 296 (2004), reconfirm that Apprendi limits, if not directly overrules, 27 Almendarez-Torres to situations where the individual admits the prior convictions during a 28 guilty plea. Blakely holds, “[o]ur precedents make clear, however, that the ‘statutory

1 maximum' for Apprendi purposes is the maximum sentence a judge may impose solely on the 2 basis of the facts reflected in the jury verdict or admitted by the defendant." Blakely, 124 3 S.Ct. at 2537 (emphasis in original). See also id. at 2543 ("As Apprendi held, every 4 defendant has the right to insist that the prosecutor prove to a jury all facts legally essential to 5 the punishment")(emphasis in original). The only way to read Blakely as not directly 6 overruling Almendarez-Torres, is by limiting Almendarez-Torres to its facts -- where the 7 individual admits the prior conviction during a guilty plea.

8 "Almendarez-Torres . . . stands for the proposition that not every fact expanding a 9 penalty range must be stated in a felony indictment, the precise holding being that recidivism 10 increasing the maximum penalty need not be so charged." Jones v. United States, 526 U.S.
 11 227, 248 (1999); accord Apprendi, 530 U.S. at 487-88. That "precise holding" cannot stand 12 in light of Blakely, Apprendi and the Fifth and Sixth Amendment right to indictment by a 13 Grand Jury. A majority of Justices agree that Almendarez-Torres does not survive 14 Apprendi. In Apprendi, the majority asserted that "it is arguable that Almendarez-Torres was 15 wrongly decided," Apprendi, 530 U.S. at 489. More importantly, Justice Thomas, who cast 16 the fifth and deciding vote in Almendarez-Torres, has admitted that his vote was erroneous.
 17 Apprendi, 530 U.S. at 518-20 (Thomas, J., concurring). Even the Apprendi dissent 18 recognized that Almendarez-Torres cannot be followed without disregarding Apprendi. See 19 Apprendi, 530 U.S. at 535 (O'Connor dissenting) ("Almendarez-Torres constituted a clear 20 repudiation of the rule the Court adopt[ed in Apprendi]"); accord id. at 559 (the distinction 21 between the section 1326 scheme at issue in Almendarez-Torres and the New Jersey scheme 22 at issue in Apprendi is "a difference without constitutional significance"). Almendarez-23 Torres no longer commands a majority of the members of the Court, see id. at 518-20 24 (Thomas, J., concurring), and Justice O'Connor, joined by Chief Justice Rehnquist and 25 Justices Kennedy and Breyer, has recognized that Apprendi and Almendarez-Torres cannot 26 be reconciled. See id. at 535 (O'Connor dissenting). Moreover, the Court has recently 27 indicated a desire to directly overrule Almendarez-Torres and reconcile the cases requiring 28 that any and all facts which increase the maximum punishment must be pled and proven

1 beyond a reasonable doubt to a jury.

2       The Supreme Court has long made it clear that the indictment must both contain all of 3 the elements of the offense and give the defendant notice. See, e.g., Russell v. United States, 4 369 U.S. 749, 763-64 (1962)("the indictment [must] contain[] the elements of the offense 5 intended to be charged, and sufficiently apprise[] the defendant of what he must be prepared 6 to meet") (internal quotations, citations omitted); accord Stirone v. United States, 361 U.S.
7 212, 216-19 (1960). The Fifth and Sixth Amendment rights discussed in Russell are 8 applicable to all elements: "The Court has not suggested in its previous opinions . . . that 9 there is a difference . . . between, on the one hand, a right to a jury determination, and, on the 10 other, a right to notice by indictment and to a determination based upon proof by the 11 prosecution beyond a reasonable doubt." Jones, 526 U.S. at 269 (Kennedy, J., dissenting). In 12 short, if there is a right to jury trial as to a particular element, there is also a right to a Grand 13 Jury determination of probable cause and notice.

14       Indeed, Apprendi itself makes clear that there should be no dichotomy between jury 15 trial rights and Grand Jury rights. The historical precedent upon which Apprendi relies 16 squarely supports the proposition that any fact which increases the statutory maximum must 17 not only be submitted to the jury and proved beyond a reasonable doubt, it must also be 18 alleged in the indictment. See Apprendi, 530 U.S. at 478 (citing J. Archbold, Pleading and 19 Evidence in Criminal Cases 44 (15th ed. 1862) and 4 Blackstone 369-70); see also id. at 480 20 ("Just as the circumstances of the crime and the intent of the defendant at the time of 21 commission were often essential elements to be alleged in the indictment, so too were the 22 circumstances mandating a particular punishment"); Ex Parte Bain, 121 U.S. 1, 12-13 (1887) 23 ("We are of the opinion that an indictment found by the grand jury was indispensable to the 24 power of the court to try the petitioner for the crime with which he was charged"). In short, 25 "the indictment must contain an allegation of every fact which is legally essential to the 26 punishment to be inflicted." Id. at 489 n.15 (quoting United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 27 232-33 (1875) (separate opinion of Clifford, J.)); accord United States v. Hooker, 841 F.2d 28 1225, 1228 (4th Cir. 1988) (observing that "[i]t is elementary that every ingredient of [a]

1 crime must be charged in the bill" and collecting cases) (internal quotations omitted).

2 Blakely reaffirmed this historical precedent. See Blakely, 124 S. Ct. at 2536 (stating 3 that the Apprendi rule "reflects two longstanding tenets of common-law criminal 4 jurisprudence: that the 'truth of every accusation' against a defendant 'should afterwards be 5 confirmed by the unanimous suffrage of twelve of his equals and neighbors,' 4 W.
6 Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 343 (1769), and that 'an accusation which 7 lacks any particular fact which the law makes essential to the punishment is ... no accusation 8 within the requirements of common law, and it is no accusation in reason.' 1 J. Bishop, 9 Criminal Procedure § 87, p. 55 (2d ed. 1872)"). There is no basis for failing to apply this 10 reasoning to the fact of prior conviction. See Apprendi, 530 U.S. at 505 (Thomas, J., 11 concurring); accord Almendarez-Torres, 523 U.S. at 248-60 (Scalia, J., dissenting).

12 The Fifth Amendment of the United States Constitution "requires that a defendant be 13 convicted only on charges considered and found by a grand jury." United States v. Du Bo, 14 186 F.3d 1177, 1179 (9th Cir. 1999). An indictment's failure to allege an essential elements 15 of the charged offense "is not a minor or technical flaw subject to harmless error analysis, but 16 a fatal flaw requiring dismissal of the indictment." Id. In Du Bo, the indictment failed to 17 allege an implied mens rea requirement. That failure was fatal to the indictment. See Id., at 18 1179-81. "The complete failure to charge an essential element of a crime ... 'is by no means 19 a mere technicality.'" Id., at 1180 (quoting United States v. King, 587 F.2d 956, 963 (9th Cir.
20 1978)).

21 Due to the lack of the requisite mens rea, the Ninth Circuit found that the indictment 22 was defective in two fundamental ways. First, because it lacked an element, the Du Bo court 23 could not be sure that the jury convicted on the same facts presented to the Grand Jury. Id., 24 at 1179. The Du Bo court could "only guess whether the grand jury received evidence of, 25 and actually passed on, Du Bo's intent." Id. Second, absent the mens rea allegation, the 26 indictment "lacks a necessary allegation of criminal intent, and as such does not 'properly 27 allege an offense against the United States.'" Id., at 1180 (quoting United States v. Morrison, 28 536 F.2d 286, 289 (9th Cir. 1976)). A complete failure to allege an element is generally a

1 fatal defect. Id. In Du Bo, the Ninth Circuit held that the failure to allege the mens rea 2 requirement was such a defect. Id. It therefore ordered the indictment dismissed. Id., at 3 1180-81.

4 The Ninth Circuit reiterated the holding that “indictment’s failure to ‘recite an 5 essential element of the charged offense is not a minor technical flaw. . . but a flaw requiring 6 dismissal of the indictment.’” United States v. Pernillo Fuentes, 252 F.3d 1030 (9th Cir.2001), 7 citing United States v. Du Bo, 186 F.3d 1177, 1179 (9th Cir. 1999). In Pernillo Fuentes, the 8 government charged the defendant with attempted entry, but did not allege the specific intent 9 element as required by Gracidas-Ulibarry, 231 F.3d 1188 (9th Cir. 2000 (en banc)). As a 10 consequence, the Ninth Circuit reversed Pernillo Fuentes’ conviction and ordered that the 11 indictment be dismissed.

12 The indictment here is defective because it fails to allege that Mr. Delgado was 13 deported subsequent to an aggravated felony (or any felony). Thus, the indictment as 14 returned clearly fails to charge a violation of section 1326(b). Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez 15 requests that the indictment be dismissed due to this structural omission for failing to allege 16 an element of the offense, i.e., that he was deported or removed subsequent to and aggravated 17 felony (any felony). In the alternative, if Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez is forced to proceed to trial 18 based on the indictment as it exists and he is convicted, the conviction would be limited to a 19 conviction under section 1326(a) which provides a maximum sentence of two years. Because 20 the government has not alleged either a section 1326(b)(1) or 1326(b)(2), the maximum that 21 Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez should receive at sentencing is two years.

23 MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE FURTHER MOTIONS

24 Mr. Gonzalez-Ramirez has filed all motions he deems to be relevant at this time.
 25 However, he requests permission to reserve the right to file further motions in response to 26 additional discovery, investigation or documents filed by the government, including his 27 recorded statements, his A-file and recorded deportation hearing.
